BOOKSELLERS RECOMMEND NEW RELEASES AND OLD FAVORITES FOR SEASIDE SCRUTINY

Remember Me?

by Sophie Kinsella
(release date: February 26th)
The author of The Shopaholic series and The Undomestic Goddess returns with the tale of a woman living life in the fast (and rich) lane. It's just too bad that a car accident leaves Lexi with no memory of the last three years of her life or how she came into such fabulousness.

Deep Dish

by Mary Kay Andrews
(release date: February 26th)
Remaining true to the style that made Savannah Blues, Blue Christmas and Hissy Fit so popular with readers, Mary Kay Andrews introduces her audience to Gina Foxton, a Southern chef ready to make her mark on the national stage. But before she grabs the spotlight, she'll have to beat out the competition for a slot on The Cooking Channel – Southern good ol' boy Tate Moody included.

We're Just Like You, Only Prettier:

Confessions of a Tarnished Southern Belle

by Celia Rivenbark
This is an absolutely classic, fun read. If the title doesn't tell you all you need to know about the book, I can't imagine the words that would.

Shadow Dance

by Julie Garwood
Shadow Dance comes complete with family dynasties, murder, an old flame and treasure. You'll wish National Treasure was this much fun.

Mr. Darcy Takes A Wife

by Linda Berdoll
Linda Berdoll explores what happened to Elizabeth Bennet and Mr. Darcy after the wedding bells rang. This sequel to Pride and Prejudice details the Bennet-Darcy union as "passionate" to say the very least.

Pardonable Lies

by Jacqueline Winspear
This novel features the popular English "psychologist and investigator" Maisie Dobbs who was first introduced by Jacqueline Winspear in 2003. As Maisie attempts to unravel three separate mysteries, Winspear paints a vivid picture of 1930s London and France.

Boogies With Elvis, Murder on a Girls' Night Out and all the rest of "The Southern Sisters Mysteries."

Anne George was many things – including a Birmingham native, a former schoolteacher and a Pulitzer Prize-nominated poet. She was also the author of seven hilarious mystery novels featuring Patricia Anne and her outrageous sister, Mary Alice.

Eat, Pray, Love

by Elizabeth Gilbert
A memoir of one woman's attempt to discover herself in three distinct and foreign lands, Eat, Pray, Love quickly became a national bestseller. Funny and insightful, if you haven't picked this one up yet, it's time.

Looks to Die For

by Janice Kaplan
Lacy Fields transforms herself from a celebrity-obsessed interior designer to a celebrity-obsessed private investigator when her husband is arrested for murder, and she's the only one who seems to believe in his innocence. Naturally, hilarity and hijinks ensue.
